Shockwave Motors Participates in the Knoxville Centennial Conservation Expo

~ Ecology ~ Economy ~ Excitement ~

Russellville, Tennessee October 12, 2013:

We were pleased to be invited to participate in the Knoxville Centennial Conservation Expo. The daylong fair commemorated the National Conservation Exposition of 1913 held in Chilhowee Park. The Expo celebrated 100 years of conservation efforts in Knoxville and East Tennessee and included historical displays, photographs and films, hands-on demonstrations, exhibits, live entertainment, athletic competitions, multimedia presentations; and of course, electric vehicles. While our demonstration roadster was not able to be shown at the event, we still attracted a lot of attention!

At Shockwave Motors, our plug-in electric cars are an innovative combination of the best of today's propulsion technology and sleek, aerodynamic styling. Our proof-of-concept electric vehicle has undergone more than 4 years of performance testing. At low speeds, we are achieving the equivalent of over 350 MPG, at highway speeds the equivalent of 225 MPG!
